HONGKONG, JUNE 17TH, 1911.

MR. MORETON FREWEN, the well-known writer on currency problems, is a member of Parliament, and we observe that in the course of a debate in the House of Commons recently on a Bill to prevent the importation from foreign countries of goods manufactured there, under sweating conditions of labour, such as are prohibited in the United Kingdom, Mr. FREWEN gave expression to this remarkable sentence: "White men work because they have to: but the Chinaman works because he likes work." Not lonly that. Mr. FREWEN also paid to men in the iron industry in China were only one-fifteenth of the wages paid in Pittsburg, and that the efficiency of the Chinaman is 90 per cent, of the efficiency of the white man. Nobody apparently was able to dispute these statements at the time they were made, but there are men in the House of Commons who know the Chinese workman far better than Mr. FREWEN does. and possibly in the subsequent discussion of the Bill these statements by Mr. Frewen were not permitted to pass unchallenged. Surely it cannot be claimed for the Chinaman that he works from any other incentive than the Kestern workman. Still less can it be said that the efficiency of the Chinaman is 90 per cent. the efficiency of the white man. The opinions of those who have had greater opportunities of observing the work of the Hongkong.

ARTHUR SMITH's well-known book, "Chinese Characteristics." One extract may suffice. He is writing of the Chinese disregard of time as it is manifested in their industry, and on their want of intension. How many of us who have had the pleasure of building a house in China, with thinese contractors and workmen, thirst to do it again?" he asks. "The men come late and go early. They are perpetually stopping to drink ten, They make long journeys to a distant limepit, carrying a few quarts of liquid mud in a cloth bag, when by using a wheelbarrow one man could do the majority of ships experienced no extension of leave for one year. the work of three; but this result is by no means the one aimed at. If there is slight rain, all work is suspended. There is generally abundant motion with but little progress, so that it is often difficult to perceive what it is which, represents the day's 'labour' of a gang of men. We have known a foreigner, dissatisfied with the slow progress of his carpenters in lathing, accomplish, while they were eating their dinner, as much as all four of them had done in half a day." Can this be considered an exaggerated view of the general conditions of labour in China at the present day We do not think so. In the foreign Colonies and the Treaty ports of China, where workmen are trained from their youth in establishments under the direct supervision of competent foreign workmen a higher standard of efficiency is reached, but increased efficiency commands increased remuneration. We do not see how the British Parliament can define what are sweating conditions of labour in other countries. Sweating may be defined as working for a rate of wages below the economic rate, and apparently this Bill which the House of Commons has been discussing would define as sweating, wages which are to-day perfectly adequate in an Asiatic country, and thus would exclude manufactures from those countries on entirely false grounds. There can be no universal standard of wages yet. In a recent article we dealt with the steady, rise in wages in Japan corresponding to the economic development of the country, and expressed the conviction that the West had nothing much to fear from the competition of countries where wages are now low, because cheapness; means inefficiency.. As the Assatic countries progress along Western lines, the standard of living will rise, and with increasing efficiency in the manufacturing industries there will be enhancement of wage rates. Fifty years hence conditions in some parts of Asia at least will probably the West, and then and not till then will it be possible to justly apply the restrictions which are imposed by the Bill referred to. If the cheap productions of foreign countries which compete with Home industries are to be denied admission into the United Kingdom, it will have to be done by taxation rather than by any such method as this Bill proposes.

Another typhoen warning was received by the American Consulate General at Hongkong from the Manila Observatory yesterday morning, reading:-" Lyclone or Typhoon S. E. of Formesa moving W.N.W."

A servant boy in a Chinese hong was sent on Thursday with a $500 note to lodge in the bank, but came back and reported that he had been attacked by two men who came behind him and snatched the money from his possession. The police are sceptical as to the theft.

The bodies of ten victims of the ferry disaster have been recovered from the harbour, one at Yaumati and the others at Tsimtsatsoi. The work of raising the sunken launch has commenced. The coxswain of the Wa Hung appeared at the Magistracy yesterday on a charge of manslaughter. The hearing was adjourned, bail being fixed at $5,000.

A Portuguese woman living in Mosque Street died under shocking circumstances on Wednesday last. She is bolieved to have poured a bottle of spirits of wine over herself and to have told the House of Commons that the wages applied a light, setting fire to berself. She was terribly burned when discovered and she died shortly after admission to the hospital. It is thought that deceased's mind had become unhinged through domestic troubles.

A Chinese named Lo Kwai, who resides on the ground floor of No. 27, stated that on the night of the 2nd a man fell down from the third floor. MR. AMBROSE DE'ATH'S COLLECTION.

At Fishmongers' Hall on the 27th ult., the Lord Mayor, who was accompanied by Mr. Sheriff Buckingham, opened an exhibition of Japanese temple pictures, which are to be on view until Jano 9.

The pictures were collected by Mr. Ambrove De'Ath during his wanderings in Japan, where he lived for 38 years. Among them are a number of masks of carved wood, which are used in the grotesque No dance at the temples on festival occasions. A 14th century kakemone, painted on paper, depicts Darums, believed to be the first disciple of Buddhism who went to Japan. Many of the pictures are remarkable for their accuracy of detail, two of them representing five hundred of the most famous Rakan disciples of Buddha: All the features are distinctly different, and the greatest variety of postures is shown. The descriptions and particulars were collected and compiled by the late Mr. C. J. W. Pfounds, assisted by a number of priests and laymen versed in Buddhist lore. Mr. Pfounds went to Japan in the earl 60's and gave up his whole time to the study the language. He afterwards occupied several important positions. Becoming a convert principal temple in Matsue, in the province of Izumo, residing with the priests. Continuing his studies, he passed his examination and was attached to the temple, taking part in the performance of the religious ceremonies.

The Lord Mayor said that when he heard of Mr. De'Ath's collection he suggested an exhi bition at the Guildhall, but as this would have involved the displacement of the Corporation's own collection the hospitality of the Fishmongers' Company was obtained. The English people were thus given another opportunity to show how interested they were in everything which concerned the Japanese nation. Mr De'Ath had undertaken the whole financia responsibility, and any profit that might be made would be devoted to the King Edward Memorial Fund.

THE DIOCESE OF VICTORIA

HISHOP'S LETTER TO THE CHINESE CLERGY IN KWANGTUNG.

Following is a trans'ation of a Chinese letter recently issued by the Bishop of Victoria to the Chinese clergy and ostechists at work under his jurisdiction in the Province of Kwang tung : -My Dear Friends, -At this time I am thinking very much of you and your honourable but difficult work. I commoud to your daily use the Collect for

"God, who as at this time didst touch the hearts of Thy faithful people, by sending to them the light of Thy Holy Spirit; grant us by the same Spirit to have a right judgment in all things, and evermore to rejuce in Him holy comfort; through the merits of Christ Jesus our Baviour, who liveth and reignet with The, in the unity of the same Spirit one God, world without end. Amen."

The Church in South China greatly needs an out-pourl g of the Holy Spirit at this time for many reasons. Let me specify two:

1. He is needed to enable us to deal wisely with the enquirers. I thank God that there are many persons now coming nuder your instruction, and we bid them all welcome, but we must remember that many of them are very ignorant and we dare not admit them to bapti-m until we are persuaded, first. that they love our Lord and are willing if aced be to suffer shame and loss for his sake, and, secondly, that they know at least the elements of hristian doctrine and are in the way of being further instructed. Insincere or ili-taught church members may become a great danger to the thurch. So I arge you to spare no pains to teach and pray with all enquirers, Catechum ne and Church Members, Those who are presented for Confirmation should be very carefully prepared.

2. There is another matter which renders the right judgment and holy comfort of the Holy Spirit very necessary for all the teachers of the Church just now. The Province and City of Kwangtung have seen some aftempts by means of assessmetion and arson to alter the government f the country. Members of the Christian Church must on no account identify themselves with any such things. The teaching of the New Testament is quite clear on the subject. Whatever may be the private opinion of individuals as to the nees of political reforms in any country, and though they may use all lawful and correct means to bring about desired reforms, they must not as a Christian Church have snything to do with a colitical revolution. Our Master Christ said: "MytKingdom is not of this world." It is Spiritual and not Political. He taught disciples to be loyal to the powers that be, to render into Cosar the things that are Cesar's. St. Paul tolis Christia a that they are so for as lieth in them to live p acably with all men. He says, "Avenge not yourselves, but overcome evil with good," "We must be in subjection for conscience sake," "Render to all their dues." Again, in his first Epistle to Timothy, he exhorted that supplications and thanksgivings be made for all men, for kings, and for all that are in high places, that we may lead a tranquil and quiet life in all godliness and honesty, and the Apostle St. 'eter exharts Christians to have their behaviour seemly among the nations. "Submit you selves, he says, "to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake, whether it be to the king as supreme or unto governors as unto them that ar sent by Him for the punishment of evil-doers and for the praise of them that do well. Honour all mon, Love the brotherhood, Fear God, Honour the King." Teach your people these things. Tell them their Heavenly Eather knowsall their difficulties and trials, and that as His servants they have part in a plorious and Eternal Kingdom. Let them therefore commit the keeping of their souls to Him as unto a faithful Creator, and never seek venremes should they at any timo suffer wrong for Christ's sake. Ask them also at this time to pray that God will raise up more pastors and teachers from amongst themselves so that His Church may lo better instructed and more carefully abspherded.

With many prayers for the Divine guidance and blessing in your most important work .- I am, your faithful friend and Bishop.

CHINESE PORK.

(Sd.) G. H. VICTORIA

We reproduced from the London Globe yesterday some correspondence on Chinese pork. Yesterday's mail brought the following further. letter on the subject :-

Sir, -I have observed with surprise the recent letters in reference to Chinese pork, published during the last few days in the columns of your valued paper.

I have recently returned from China, and am able to state that the frozen pigs that are being exported to England are of breeds quite equal to many raised in England, and far superior to those coming from several countries in Europe. had an opportunity of speaking to our Ambassador at Peking, and also to the Consul-General in the town from which the pigs are imported, upon the question, and they both assured me that the English company which inaugurated this business deserve every medit for their enterprise in tapping a valuable source of food supply, that the pigs being experted were of a special breed from a district that had been noted for generations for their excellence in quality that they were fed on rice, which is exceedingly cheap in the district, and there is no doubt that the food of these pigs is far and away superior to that of those raised in the neighbourhood of all the large towns in England, food consisting of hotel, ki chen, and restaurant refuse of which we all have vivid recollection.-Yours, &c., FAIRPLAY. operations in opium were gone, so he turned his exchange brokerage. Refusing to recognise the existence of such a word as 'impossible,' he soon came to the front, and for many years he has played the leading part on the local Stock Exchange, carrying through many transactions of corniderable magnitude. More than once he lost his all, for in his career he has had difficulties to overcome and obst-cles to surmount, but with fine courage and estimable self-confidence he has braved the storms. Always possessed of a marvoilous memory and a wonderful fund of energy and zeal, even at an age when most business men are content to rest on their laurels, his activity was proverbial." No truer words were spoken or written of Sir Hormusjee than these. . It is typical of the man that he died in harness. Right up to the day his feeble health o mpelled him to remain indoors he took an active interest in the large business which he had built up, and though he did not enjoy retirement as so many successful business men do, he still had the satisfac ion of continuing his life of usefulness up to the last and in seeing the fruits of his thought and the realisation of many un ertakings. Though simple and unaffected in manner, he possessed shrawd business ability and wonderful powers of penetration. His diligence and application seemed to be base? on the advice of the Psalmist, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do with all thy might." His singleness of thought and purpose were conspicuous, and it was these qualities which contributed more than anything else to the success of his life. And no one can gulasay that his life was not a success. Not only did he amass money. but he made good use of it. JAPANESE BANKING DIFFICULTIES

Sir Westby B. Perceval presided at the meeting held in London on the 23rd ult, of the Anglo-Javanese Bank, and in referring to the account a observed that, although at first sight the figures for the past our might seem to be dis pointing in that they appeared to indicate a falling off in net profits, he would point out that that was more apparent than resi. The apparent decrease was due to the provision of a necessary sumeto write off an investment made in wingers, and Sir Hirmusjee showed unmistak- the very early days of the bank, which had turned s heavy amount on account of Japanese income tax, which they had not to provide for in pravious years. The actual volume of business done both in Japan and London showed a gratifying in reise, no withstanding that the year under review had been absolutely the most unfavourable on record. This confirmed them in the opinion that their policy of keeping the resources of the tank liqued and intact was a sound one, which, when business revived in Japan and when the demand for money great more insistent, must give them their reward i largely increased profits. He thought that it would be unressorable to ask the shareholders to go without dividends beyond the present year. and, if nothing abnormal happened, they co fidently expected to enter the dividend raying stage next year. The process of building up was hard for those re-possible for the working of the bank, and also involved a strain on th generos ty and confidence of shareholders, but is neverthele-s was the sound policy, and in their opinion the only one by which they could hope to succeed. That they were able to transfer the substantial amount of £10,000 to the formation of a reserve fund, while writing off £5,468 from the preliminary expenses and at the same suspended exchange business. Flags were half, time carry forward a sum of £13,00), was a source of considerable gratification to the director. Not only had the past year in Japan been one of a mormally low rates for money, but it had witnessed in certain trades a considerable amount of over-trading, and heavy losses had been made. In one instance alone the losses made by one of the best known local Japanese banks were said to have amounted to over Yen 1.0 0.000. Fortunately the lesses in question had failen on shoulders well able to bear them, but that would serve to illustrate the difficulties with which their mausger in Japan had had to contend. Their most recent advices reasonably expect a considerable expansion of local trade in the near future, and that should mean an i creased demand for money at more remunerative rates.

The report was ununimously adopted.

BRITISH SUBJECTS IN KOREA.

In the House of Commons last month Mr. Mitchell Thomson (Down, E., Onp.) asked the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether any assurances had been received from Japanese Government regarding the question of land temure and ownership and working minerals by British subjects in Kores; and if so, what was the nature of such assurances. Sir E. Grey (Northumberland, Berwick)-In reply to representations by his Majesty's Government, the Japanese Government have declared that they will abide by Declaration made st the time of the annexation of Korea, the text of which was published in the Present the time, whereby the protection of the legally acquired rights of foreigners in Korea is assed. They have fully recognized that British owners of land or mines in Korea have the right to hold and dispose of such property without being subjected to the conditions and re-trictions of the Japanese Law of April 12, 19:0, with regard to the ownership of land by foreigners or of the Mining Law at present in force in Japan proper. These answers have been accepted as satisfactory.

THE INEFFECTIVENESS OF PROFIBITION.

As proof of the folly and ineffectiveness of prohibition, the following extract from a letter from Moosomin, Sask., Canada, has been sent to the Wine Trade Review :-This town is awfully quiet just now, as we have "local option," so all the bars are closed. except for soft drinks. Lots of the fellows get their whisky from another town about eight miles away, I ring it bac's here, go into the bar for a soft drink, and fill up with their own whisky. I think there are more "drunks about then before. You see, before the new law was nessed a man could go into a bar, call for a 10 cent. drink and go away; but now he buys a bottle somewhere, comes into the bar with one or two friends, and stays until the bottle is empty, which means gonerally that one or more gets "screwed." you may gness, there are everal "blind jugs about, and they do a hit of it here, and sell hottle of whisky that costs. say 90 cents for 12 or 2 dollars of course, awfully risky. A few travellers in to-day, but they do not stop as liey used to, and very coldom more t'an a day, whereas before they would stay a week or more. It is a cantion the difference local option has made to the town. We have just had notices (sent out by the doctor) advising nathat typhoid fever i- epidemic, and giving the usual warning. The hospital. I hear, is pretty full, and it we foll wout all the instructions we shall be busy. It does ever strange that as soon as the sale of whisky is a opped typhoid comes round, and snother curious thing is that nearly all the patients are total abstainers.

His long periods of silence have often given rise to that conjecture, but this letter is too, legally witnessed-a will as exacting, suspicious and eccentric as himself. Has it ever struck you, Deedes, how peculiar it was of Ralph Pondrear not to take any steps to obtain imformation about his son P" "I am not given to idle conjecture, Dashwood, as you know." "Quite so, you are not." But to me, the father of a family myself, it seems more than eccentric for a man to cut himself so adrif from his family as not to wish to know whether his only son be dead or alive. To think that father and son may have been travelling over the same continent, within measureable distance perhaps of each other, without either of them knowing it! I believe we are the only people who knew of Ralph Pendrear's whereabouts, but absolutely nothing is known of his son." "I understood the son lived with his maternal grandmother, in the neighbourhood of his

"Hadid so at one time, but he, too, wentabroad

when he was quite'a lad and nothing has been heard of him for over a year. Ah! these young men. Always so anxious to leave a good home, always so quick to forget its benefite! Young Charles inherited his father's erratic ways." "I hope he has not inherited his other characteristics?" snapped the younger man.
The other shook his head.

" Yet there was much that was good in Ralph Pendrear," he said. "But brought up in an atmosphere where scheming and self-indulgence lived side by side with Puritan severity, you can hardly wonder that he developed into the man he did."

"And so everything is left to his heir" asked.

Mr. Deedes, who had heard enough of the Pendrear failings.

"Everything. He appears to have drawn up his own will, a document as curious as the m n himself; but perfectly valid. Here it is; read it for yourself. .He passed it over to his partner, who read it in silence and the subject was dropped.

It was not until a couple of months afterwards that Mr. Dashwood re-opened the topic, "You remember tuncase of Rulph Pendrear of whom we were talking some time ago? 1 have received a communication from his son-

"Genuise, should you imagine?" "I believe so. La fact, I may say I am nearly pertuin that it is. He possesses all the necessary documental evidence and wishes us to make an appointment for an interview when he says he hopes to fully satisfy us as to the justice of his claim."

" Brom where has he suddenly appeared?" asked Mr. Deedes

" He has just returned from the States. He was in San Francisco at the time of the earthquake and narrowly escaped with his life. The shock to his system produced a long and sovere illess from which he is only just recovering He has been in England only a few-days and has. just seen our advertisement for news of Ralph Pendrear's heir. It had been his intention to go straight to his grandmother in Cornwall, and the news of her terrible end has greatly distressed him. He appears to be a man of considerable sense and good-feeling. I must own that I am looking forward with some pleasurable expectancy to making his acquaintance. Writes a decent letter," was Mr. Doedes'

"I have asked him to call here on Thursday." On Thursday, accordingly, Mr. Charles Pendrear presented bimself at the office of Messrs. Dashwood & Desdes.

He was a sleaderly built young man of middle height; with a pale clean shaven face; clear cut features and dark brown eyes. He wore a loose, light overcoat and soft felt hat, which, together with the fact that he kept his dark hair somewhat longer than is the custom with Englishmen, gave him a slightly foreign appearance.

He handed his card to the clerk, and in a voice which was singularly refined, enquired for Mr. Dashwood.

He was shown into the private room of the senior partner, who welcomed him with marked cordiality. Charles Pendrear's own manner was less effusive. He was quiet and reserved, and although he replied frankly enough to the lawyer's numerous questions, he did not show any inclination to talk about himself.

"Yes," he said, "I suppose I have been a rolling stone, making no friends and few acquaintances. A taint in our blood, no doubt."

"You are a typical Pendrear in appearance, whatever you may be in character," said the lawyer, looking steadily at the young man's attractive face.

"You are not, I take it, familiar with the mansion of Pendrear ?" he went on. " I am familiar enough with its exterior; many time with my grandmother have I gazed through the great rusty gates."

"The tragic fate of your grandmother must have come as a great shock to you?"

A shadow passed over f'endrear's face. "It did indeed. The happiest days of my life were spent in her ouse at Sennen. I re-member as a child marching up and down the narrow passage beating a drum. The grand-father's clock, too, at the foot of the stairs and the kitchen with its dresser and its plates. can see them now. with a magenta border and impossible roses and foliage. I knocked one down with a ball one day, and the housekeeper, Mrs. Jennings, wanted to whip me, but my grandmother intervened. But I must bore you."
Upon this t pic he had plenty to say, but when questioned u on his life during the few past years, he was less communicative...

"There is very little to tell. I've knocked about in various places doing first one thing and then another, drifting at last to San Francisco, where I was pretty nearly finished up."

"It must have been a terrible experience: "Mr. [ Dashwood remarked sympathetically. "It was so. It is a time I don't care to talk about. The shock was terrible; I nearly pegged out in the illness which followed."

"Well, well I hope your wandering days are over now and that you will marry and settle down comfortably in the home of your ancestors. We must find you a charming wife who will keep you in the old country."

"I shall never have a wife," replied the young man decisively. "Tut, tut, my dear sir! It is early days yet to have come to that decision. You must see the

"I gather that the income is about £4,000 a year, and that it is invested in Consols and government securities ?"

"Test is so. Your father was an exceedingly suspicious man and was always afraid of being swindled. He preferred the small rate of interest rather than run any risks. The very wording of the will itself boars out his strangely anspicious, cautious character. It is au i storesting document."

"I have not rad it. But I should very much like to do so." Mr. Dashwood unlocked a black tiu box on which the name of Pendrear was inscribed. He took out the document in question and handed it to his client:

Pendrear bent his dark head over the parchment and for some minutes there was silence in the room. Then a sudden frown gathered on Pendrear's forehead and a look of annoyance in

The news that the heir of Pendreir was to comeinto his own again caused great excitement in the neighbourhood of Land's End. Gossip and speculation were rife as to his appearance, his habits and his style of living. "Taint likely he will want to spend much time in an out-of-the-way spot like this," said one, as he sat in the sanded parlour of the little Sennen inn. "A young chap like him, who has knocked about in foreign parts, he won't want to settle down here for good and all."

"Marko he's got a wife," speculated one.
"Tis a long time since a lady ruled to Pendrear. I for one would not be agen 'ving a bit of bacoy or a packet of tea at Christmas time; same as the old lady used to give—her as was Charles Pendronr's grandmother."

"Talk of Charlie Pendrear's grandmother; tis a whist thing for sure that she was made i away with just before he came home. Her was that set on him! I remember the day he went away as if it were vesterday; a slip of a lad with his curly hair and hig brown eyes, I should know him again in a minute. A likely boy he was with a fine spirit of his own."

"That's so," chimed in another, "And handsome, too The lessies will give him a good welcome, I'll warrant. Pity Miss Harriet's gone away, they would have made a fine pair.

"Poor Miss Harriot! Folks say her killed the old lady, but I don't believe it. 'Taint natural, says I, for a young creature like her to murder one that's been a mother to her, as it were, £2,000 or no £2,000," and Polperno thumped rigorously on the table.

"I'm thinking it looked mighty bad her writing about the flower farm to Beilly, seems as if her had summat in her mind," put in one, "So she may, but you take my word for it, "twas not murder. My Lizzie was there at the time, and she says Miss Harriet never done it." "What's your Lizzia doing now?"

"She's got a place to Penzauce, but the lady is going back to Lunnon and my gal won't go. She would like to be at Pendrear. She's thinking she's a chance now the young heir will open the house again."

Thus the conversation reverted to its usual topic; the coming of Charles Pendrear. The good people of Sennen had some idea of a trumphal entry under a festoned arch; of music. speeches and a public demonstration. But Charles Pendrear had other views.

He appeared in no burry to come into his inheritance, some weeks elapsed before he visited the home of his fathers.

His coming was the first of many disappointments. He arrived one evening in the dusk and drove frem Penzance in a hired fly.

Up the long hill beyond the stati in, through: the line where trees met overhead, past the old granite cross that marked the St. Buryian road, through the breezy hamlet of Sennen Churchtown, on to the white road that gave on to the

The cold breath of the sea fannel young Pandrear's check, his grave face relaxed, he lifted his head, his nostrils dilated like a warhorse scenting battle. "We shall be there in five minutes," he said

"You know just where you are, then?" remarked his companion, none other than Mr. Dashwood, who had wished to be present at the astallation of the hoir.

"Know where I am?" echoed Pendrear. "You forget that my childhood was spent in these

"May I ask if you intend to live here altogether P"

"Cortainly not. How much time I spend down here will depend upon circumstances. Of course the conditions of my father's will prevent all thought of selling the place. But I have not the slightest wish to get rid of it."

As he spoke the fly came to a standstill. A man and his wife had been engaged some weeks in advance to re-open, clean and warm the house; so, for they were its only occupants. Some offence had been given to the natives that the pair had been sent down from London, instead of being engaged in the neighbourhood.

"I shall have the house and the garden put into thorough repair." remarked the heir, as he crossed the threshold, a flush of triumph in his sombre eves.

" Mine, mine," he inurmured to himself, the pride of possession strong within him; Dinner was served in the dining-room, a long low oak panuelled chamber, with portraits on the wall of dead and gone Pendrears. To most of them had that Italian ancestor bequeathed her carling brown locks, her large dark eyes, her determined chin and slim straight figure. In Charles all these characteristics were strongly marked.

"I suppose," remarked the lawyer, "as you are not going to make your home down here you will live in town? I shall be most pleased to introduce you to some nice people."

you know, we Pendrears all have a roving disposition. I shall not seattle down anywhere, so it will be useless to introduce me to society. I am something of a recluse, too, with but little affection for my fellow-creatures. So although I am much obliged for your kindness it will be really no good introducing this topic again."

Mr. Dashwood saw that Pendrear was in earnest, so said no more, He sagely reflected that time would put this right. Taking a cigar from his pocket, he lit it and smiled benignly on bis young client through the curling rings of "You don't smoke, I believe?" he said. Pendrear sbook his head.

"That may have something to do with my unsociability." He smiled as he spoke, and Mr. Dashwood felt the charm of his smile. Pardrear retired to hed early. Mrs. Parker, somewhat diffidently, enquired if her master would require any assistance from her husband. and was visibly relieved when the young heir replied that he preferred waiting on himself. He was certainly not over-hurdened with luggage; his personal effects were contained in one light valise, and but a few minutes sufficed for their arrangement.

Charles Pendrear pulled aside the blind and looked out into the night. No sound was to be heard but the rolling of the distant sea, the crying of the gulls and the sighing of the wind. "It is lonely enough, in all conscience," he murmured. "Well, so much the better. If only that lawyer would not persist in wanting to introduce me to his friends and find me a wife. I do not think he will find me one in a hurry; it would be a more difficult business than he thinks."

He turned away from the window, a smile upon his face, and as he was dropping into slumber he again laughed softly to himself. (To be Continued.)

THE BLOOD is the LIFE of the FLESH

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills-What they are and what they do. Their Four Principal Ingredients.

It is an established fact that all diseases spring from one source, namely: Impurity of the Blood. Therefore our strength, health, and life depend upon the vital fluid. When the various passages become clogged, and do not act in perfect harmony with the different functions of the body, the blood loses its action, becomes thick, corrupted, and diseased, thus causing pains, sickness, and distress of every name; our strength is exhausted; and if Nature is not assisted in throwing off the stagnant humours, the blood will become choked and cease to act, and thus our light of life will be extinguished. How important, then, that we should keep the various passages of the body free and open, and if assistance is necessary to have at hand that invaluable remedy, Dr. MORSE'S INDIAN ROOT PILLS, manufactured from plants and roots which grow around the mountain cliffs in Nature's garden, for the health and recovery of diseased man.

One of the roots from which these Pills are made is a SUDORIFIC, which opens the pores of the skin, and assists Nature in throwing out the finer parts of the corruption within.

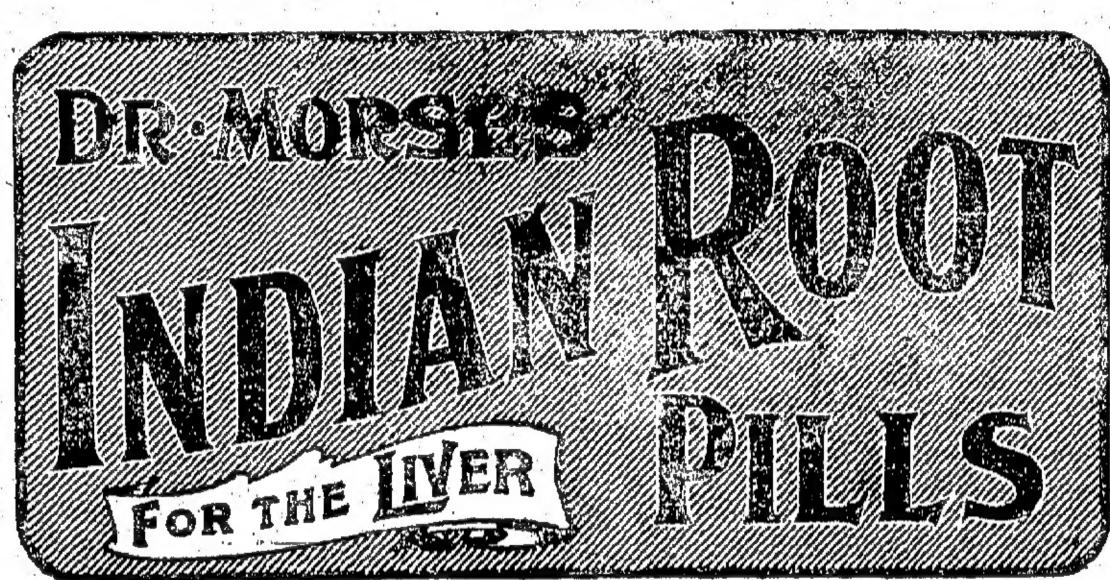

The second is a plant which is an EXPECTORANT that opens and uncloses the passage to the lungs, and thus in a soothing manner performs its duty by throwing off the phlegm and other humours from the lungs by copious spitting.

The third is a DIURETIC, which gives ease and double strength to the Kidneys; thus encouraged, they draw large amounts of impurity from the blood, which is thrown out bountifully by the urinary or water passages, and which could not have been discharged in any other way.

The fourth is a CATHARTIC, and accompanies the other properties of the Pills while engaged in purifying the blood, and the coarser particles of impurity which cannot pass by the other outlets are thus taken up and conveyed off in large quantities by the bowels.

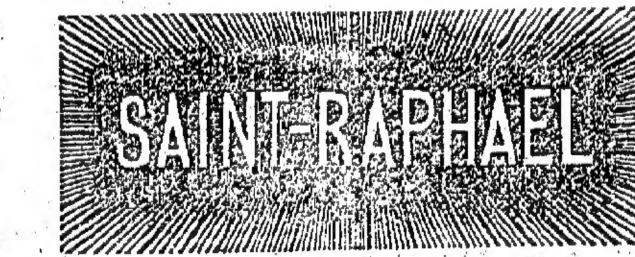

From the foregoing it is shown that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only enter the stomach, but become united with the blood, for they find the way to every part, and completely root out and cleanse the system from all impurity, and the life of the body, which is the blood becomes perfectly healthy; consequently all sickness and pain are driven from the system, for they cannot remain when the body becomes pure and clean.

DR. MORSE'S INDIAN ROOT PILLS are an efficient, reliable, and safe remedy placed on the market at a price within the reach of all. The Pills being sugar-coated, are pleasant to take, and retain their full medicinal properties. They are packed in umber-coloured bottles-not in cheap wooden or pusteboard boxes-and are thus always fresh and clean, impervious to moisture, unaffected by climatic conditions, and do not deteriorate by keeping as all liquid medicines do.

PREFERENCE. ALBERT HALL DEMONSTRATION.

MR. BALFOUR ON IMPERIAL

The campaign in support of Imperial Preference, which was opened last month at Marchester, received a powerful stimulus from the demonstration held in the Albert Hall, London, on the 23rd ult.

There could be no stronger or more convincing proof of the appeal of the policy of preferential trade within the Empire, says The Times, than that, on a beautiful May evening, and an too, of many social functions, the masses and the classes should have united in showing their common support of it to the extent of filling the vest vpaces of the Albert Hall. On the platform there was a large gathering representative of the Lords and Commons. The three tiers of boxes were filled with ladies. The body of the ball-amphitheatre, balconies, and galleries -were packed with men.

The telegram from Mr. Chamberlain, by the reading of which Lord Selborne, who presided, opened the proceedings, was greated with loud cheers. It urged that the Imperial Conference should be taken advantage of to enforce the. necessity of accepting the Dominion's offer of Preference in the interest of the unity and strength of the Empire.

Mr. Balfour was accorded a stirring welcome on rising to speak, and the cheers were frequent and loud throughout his thoughtful and grave speech, which lasted three-quarters of an hour. Unless there was a change in this country's fiscal policy of free imports, he said, he foresaw from the most-favoured nation treatment disastrous consequences either to our political relations with the Dominions or to our commercial relations with foreign countries. He pointed that owing to the different interpretation given to most-favoured-nation treatment by England and by the United States, if the Reciprocal Agreement between Canada and America were concluded, Canada must extend the trade advantages she gave to America to other countries having most-favoured-nation treaties with England, while America would reserve entirely to herself such gains as she obtained from Canada. It was inevitable in these circumstances that the self-governing Dominions would in time be driven to say to the Mother Country. "If you will not make the preferential bargain with us that we offer, give us a free hand to make bargains ourselves with the many suitors who come to our doors with favours to offer in return for our trade." What answer, asked Mr. Balfour, was this Free Trade Government to give if it were still in office-which Heaven forbid! -when the Dominions made that request? If it were then decided to "denounce these-most-favoured-nation treaties the result would be that Free Trade, instead of establishing peace and good will on earth, would lead to quarrels with foreign nations and the dislocation of our world-wide trade. All these troubles, which the future had in store for us, might have been avoided if the present Government had but shown a little foresight and a little patriotism.

Thus Mr. Balfour advanced through a series of masterly arguments to a peroration, delivered with great fervour and energy, which cought the audience and swept them to their feet. It was not yet too late, he said, to avert the coming of the dark future which he had pictured. If this country could freely discuss with the Dominion Premiers, assembled at the Imperial Conference, the question of the fiscal policy of the Empire, he believed that trade relations could be made with all parts of the Empire which, while mutually advantageous to all concerned. would obvicte the perils that surely agaited us if the Government were to continue, impenitent and blind, on their ancient and worn out fiscal courses.

A STARTLING STATEMENT.

A startling statement was made recently in a Court, when a witness said, that in his line of business, it was the rule always to overstate the claims of the goods advertised! There may be articles on the market which would not sell if their claims were not overstated, but people should fight shy of the m. There is no need to overstate the claims of a genuine, well-proved article, and that is why the plain truth about

Mother Seigel's Syrup is always sufficient! All that Mother Seigel's Syrup does is to tone up and strengthen the stomach, and to stimulate the action of the liver and bowels in the healthy, natural way. The result is plain. When the curative extract- of roots, barks and leaves, of which Mother Seigel's Syrup is made, have bron ht those organs into good working order, nine-tenths of all ordinary ailments become impossible. This must be so, because when the EY E. C. COOK and Enlarged Edition stom ch, liver and bowels are acting naturally and harmonionaly, the food is well eigested, the body is well nourished, the blood is purified, the system is kept free from the poisonous products of indigestion, and health and strength naturally

It is when the stomach, liver and bowels are not i good condition that you get such troubles as pains after eating, wind in the stomach, furred tongue, lost appetite, headaches, ansemia, biliousness, constipation, nervousness, sleeplessness, and similar nilments. That is why Mother Seigel's Syrup, the well-proved stomach and liver tonic, cures all such ailments and changes illness and suffering into glorious health. The letter below, from Mr. Parker, proves that Mother Seigel's Syrup does cure stomach and liver troubles, for it has cured him. Mr. C. Parker, of 20, Oldham St., Russell Street, Blackburn, England, writing us on April 27, 1910. Baid:-"I was hale and hearty until about a year ago, when I began to be troubled with Indigestion. The pains in my chest and stomach were so bad that it was as much as I could do to crawl about, and many a time, on my way home from work, I have been obliged to sit down and rest by the roadside. My appetite quite left me, and the little which I forced myself to eat my stomach was too weak to retain for more than an hour or so, and was vomited without having done me any good. "I got such slight relief from ordinary medicines that a friend advised me to try Mother Seigel's Syrup, and I had only taken two small bottles when a great change for the better came over me. My pains decreased, and finally left me, and soon I could eat and enjoy food as well as ever I had done.

If your digestive organs are out of order, take Mother Seigel's Syrup as your friend, and you will soon feel fit and well again. [67-12

MORE DEADLY THAN THE BAYONET

A REMINISCENCE OF JOHANNESBURG DURING THE BORE WAR.

Bad water killed more men during the Boer war than did cannon, rifle or bayonet-for the majority of deaths were through Enteric and Dysentory, discusos caused by gorms in a polluted water supply.

Towards the end of the war Mr. Gerrit Van Tuinen, an employé on the Transveal Railways, was stationed in Johannesburg. "It was while stationmaster at Johannesburg Park Station that I fell victim to Dysentery through drink-ing bad water," said he. "I had severe pains in the stomach and was constantly purging, my strength gradually folling away until I became so thin as to be but little more than a living skeleton. For six months I roundined in this misorable state of ill-health, during which time I lived on "slops" and the slightest of diet, and then-finding that the doctor's medicine and the various other remedies I tried did me no good-I resolved to take a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills cared me. After six bottles of them the Dysentery ceased, I had no more pains in the stomach, and was able to entanything I liked. "Soon after the Boor war was over," continued Mr. Van Tuinen, "I came to Netherlands India. After residing in Batavia a few months I contracted Malarial Fever in a severe form, and although I was advised to go into hospital I refused to do so, preferring to doctor myself at home. However, after a year of nimost continuous suffering I was at last compelled to go into the Military Hospital at Butavia.

"The treatment I received there was of the Ploughing the silvery sea. most careful kind, but still my health did not improve, the fever refused to leave my system. Then my thoughts turned to Dr. Williams'. Pink Pills, the medicine which had been so good a friend to me in Johannesburg, and once again 'I tried them. After a few bottles the fever entirely left me, and although it is now five years since this happened I have nover had ancther attack. I can confidently say that these pills are responsible for my excellent health." An immediate improvement in the condition of the blood is the first thing n cessary for the elimination of sickness and diseace. As the blood gains in purity, richness and strength so the health improves until fully restored. For purifying, strongthoning and ouriching the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People stand supreme. Through the blood they build up the nervous system. This is the simple reason for their world-wide reputation as a remedy for Ancemia, Debility, Disorders of the Digestion, Skin Ailments, Nervous Complaints, and for the special maladies of ladies. They can He considers it quite worth while be obtained from most medicine venders and from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 84, Szechnon Road, Shanghai, China, one bottle for a dollar and a half, six bottles for eight dollars, post free. It should be added that Mr. Van Tuinen now resides at Bundjermasin, Bornco, where he holds a responsible position in the office of the The steward and stewardess come; " Gewestelijk Intendant."

SEA BORN VERSES,

ON THE LINER "AKI MARU,"

O the Aki Moru, With Commander and Crew, What a jolly good ship is she! With her passenger throng She glides smoothly along,

When she enters the strait She alters her gait, " And dances the Highland-fling; Or rocks us to steep In the troughs of the deep,

While breakers their lullabies sing. Now the Aki Maru, With her competent craw, Is Queen of the Indian Ses :

For her decks are all clean, And never was seen wholesomer ship than she. The menus are fine: And the dishes all shine;

While the food is truly the best; . Tuo waiters attend And their services lend To comply with your simple request.

The chief steward's a man, Yes, a true gentleman; To give us the best, Which is a good test, And he never begrudges a smile.

With the broth and the tea, At ten and at three. And search you out, They wander about

To see that each person has some. If you wish for a drink, You have only to think, When lo, and behold: It is here. If in need of a swim. Or a turn at the " Gym.";

There's a tankful of water quite near. If the we ther is warm. You find it no harm, Playing oroquet or ring-toss on dook; Or to sit in your chair

And see Vanity Fair Going down to her ruin and wreck, Or, perhaps you would walk

With a friend who can talk, And you ramble the dock all round. Or you gaze at the "stars." Leaning over the bars, And list to each marmuring sound

All the state-rooms are right; And on every night. You slumber and peacefully dream; In your cozy boudoir You find table and drawer,

Which is surely a capital scheme. In the saloon you see Growns of two or of three. Some of whom the Library calls; While others who can

View th scenes of Jupan Which adorn the beautiful walls, In our cabin we find Everything to our mind; For our stewardess never forgets. And the steward's the same; Though we tell not their name,

Two other good friends Their services lend, And these we cannot forget: One looks after our health, And one after our wealth. They our gratitude surely will get.

Then the Chief Engineer, And his men, without fear, Are guarding and feeding the power: So that all may go well, And this beautiful spell Continue until the last hour.

But up on the bridge, With his eyes on the ridge, Where the sea and the sky seem to meet. Walks an officer bold. In the heat or the cold, Ever ready each danger to meet.

O the Aki Maru. Whose Commander is sure. What a jolly good ship is she: With her passenger throng She glides smoothly along, Ploughing the mighty sea.

(Written on board the Aki Maru by one of the passengers, Olive E. Weston, sailing from Colombo to Kobe, April 3rd, 1911.)
